ALFRED NELSON.

my6tr

The Supreme Court has decided that Hibbs, the Lewiston, Idaho, defaulting postmaster, has been guilty of an extraditable offence, and ordered him to be delivered over to the United States authorities.

The details of an alliance between Jay Gould and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company is the latest sensation to which the manufacturers of rumors invite the attention of Wall street capitalists and speculators.

The President yesterday received a telegram from General Joseph E. Johnston, saying he was in Portland, Oregon, when he received word of his selection as one of General Grant's pall bearers and that he had started immediately for New York.

It is understood that the President will, within a few days, fill the Second Lieutenancies existing in the line of the army from civil life. There will be ten vacancies after the non-commissioned officers who are now being examined shall be assigned to regiments.

Secretary Manning has appointed George W. Albright, of Albany N. Y., a skilled laborer in the Sixth Auditor's at an annual salary of $1,000, and assigned him to duty as assistant to the chief of the Appointment Division. It is understood that he will soon be appointed assistant chief of the division to succeed George M. Rose. It is also said that Albright will eventually succeed Higgins as Chief of the Appointment Division.

Jay Gould, according to the Stock Exchange gossip in the World, has suffered losses by the recent raise in the Vanderbilt and Granger stocks to the amount of $1,500,000. He has sold 100,000 shares of Union Pacific and a large quantity of Western Union and such amounts of Missouri-Pacific as the market would bear. Being thus amply provided with funds, he proposes to take the field in conjunction with the Baltimore and Ohio party against the Morgan-Lanier-Vanderbilt-Woerishoefer combination.

A florist in Oakland is making, by order of Governor and Mrs. Stanford, of California, a beautiful floral piece to be sent Mrs. Grant at Mount McGregor. It will represent the gates ajar, and a picture of General Grant will be above the gates. It will be made of immortelles, white roses and ivy leaves; will be six feet high and five feet broad. It will doubtless be the most beautiful floral offering yet presented. Up to this time the only elaborate floral pieces have been presented by the Grand Army posts.

The Cleveland (Ohio) Plain Dealer (Democratic) has been clamoring for a free distribution of the spoils. It now says: "The fact is, there is a craze for office-holding that is demoralizing. It is creating a class of public paupers who are too lazy to work and too cowardly to steal. If the President will do anything in the way of discouraging this craze he will do well." They will all come around to that view when they discover that the President really means to carry out genuine civil service reform.

Low Rates.

General Horace O. King, Secretary of the Society of the Grand Army of the Potomac, last Thursday morning said that the latest rate fixed for the round trip to San Francisco next year was $65. Agent Malcolm, of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, said he understood all transcontinental lines west of the Missouri had made a rate of $50 for the round trip. Passenger Agent Seaman, of the Union Pacific, said the rate would probably not be decided upon before the end of the year, though Eastern agents were now at work upon it. In his opinion, the round-trip rate would be from $75 to $100—certainly not less than $75.

Mark Twain's Prediction.

Mark Twain thus writes to the Sun about Grant's place of sepulcher. He says: "We should select a grave which will not merely be in the right place now, but which will still be in the right place in all years from now. How does Washington promise as to that? You only have to hit it in one place to kill it. Some day the West will be numerically strong enough to remove the seat of Government. Her past attempts are a fair warning that when the day comes she will do it. Then the city of Washington will lose its consequence and pass out of public view and public talk. It is quite within possibilities that a century hence people would wonder and say, 'How did our predecessors come to bury their great dead in this deserted place?' But as long as American civilization lasts New York will last. I observe that the common and strongest objection to New York is that it is not 'national' ground. Let us give ourselves no uneasiness about that. Wherever Grant's body lies that is national ground."

An Unnatural Father.

The crusade against immorality in London and the surrounding country grows daily, and the leaders in most cases are women. Last Thursday a motherless girl named Davies, aged sixteen, gave birth to a child at Dudley, in Worcestershire. The neighbors became convinced that her own father was the father of the child and a crowd of women assembled to punish him. They invaded the factory where he was employed, dragged him from his work, tore off most of his clothing and gave him a terrible beating with rawhides. The victim howled for mercy, but he was told he had shown no mercy to his victim and he should have none. When the women were tired of whipping him, they tied him to the tail board of a cart with a placard on his bleeding back setting forth the crime with which he was charged. Finally Davies was turned over to the police to be tried on a charge of incest as soon as his daughter is well enough to give her testimony.

Chicago's Caustic Comment.

The Chicago Tribune's special philippic against New York Thursday—that it is the most un-American, unnatural city in the United States; Tory during the Revolution, Copperhead during the Rebellion, with not enough Americanism in all its society life to make a man of Grant's robust quality, and therefore unfit for the latter's resting place—has stirred up the New York editors by its nearness to the truth of some of its invectives, and Friday morning's papers are quite hot over it. It can hardly be denied, however, that no city in the Union contains proportionally so many bitter maligners of Grant, nor no city where so many have forgotten him as savior of the Union and remember actively the firm of Grant & Ward.

Things of Value.

That salt should be eaten with nuts to aid digestion.
That rusty flatirons should be rubbed over with beeswax and lard.
That it rests you in sewing to change your position frequently.
That a hot, strong lemonade taken at bedtimes will break up a bad cold.
That tough meat is made tender by lying a few minutes in vinegar water.
That a little soda water will relieve sick headache caused by indigestion.
That a cup of strong coffee will remove the odor of onions from the breath.
That a cup of hot water drunk before meals will prevent nausea and dyspepsia.
That well-ventilated bedrooms will prevent morning headaches and lassitude.
That one in a faint should be laid flat on his back; then loosen his clothes and let him alone.
That a fever patient can be made cool and comfortable by frequent sponging-off with soda water.
That cold tea should be saved for your vinegar barrel. It sours easily and gives color and flavor.
That to beat the whites of eggs quickly, add a pinch of salt. Salt cools, and cold eggs beat rapidly.

It is estimated there has been a decrease of about $7,000,000 in the public debt during July.

The Overland Monthly for August.

A personal acquaintance of General Grant in his California days, contributes a few brief reminiscences of the General to the August Overland; and Warren Olney, whose remarkable account of the battle of Shiloh, in the June Overland, has called out letters from all parts of the East, adds an outline analysis of the military career of Grant. The editorials, likewise, comment upon the secret of his hold upon the popular affection. In the same number of the Overland a Confederate officer narrates the battles of Lookout Mountain and Missionary Ridge. The spirit displayed in this article is very significant.

The Overland's marked gain in business and literary lines is attracting comment in every direction. The present number contains a large proportion of Pacific Summer sketches: "Summer in the Sierra," A Hilo Plantation," "Roses in California," "Early Horticulture in California"—the last by C. H. Shinn, containing much forgotten material, resurrected from journals and reports of early days. The most notable of more serious articles is a full and scholarly discussion, from a practical point of view, of "The Metric System," by Professor John Le Conte. This distinguished scholar is unqualifiedly for the system, and gives important figures with regard to the saving to be accomplished by it. The important series, "The Building of a State," closes the history of the Pioneer Churches with a sketch of the "Early Days of the Protestant Episcopal Church in California," by Rev. E. J. Lion, son of one of the pioneers. The previous numbers of this series have been written by the pioneers themselves; but the approaching death of the earliest pioneer, Dr. Ver Mehr, and the blindness of Bishop Kip, the pioneer bishop, have thrown the work into the hands of a younger generation.

It has long been remarked by critics that the poetry of the Overland averaged better than that of any other journal in the country, if the "Atlantic" be excepted. There need be no exception made this month, for no other of the August magazines offers poetry of equal merit to that in the August Overland. Professor Sill and Laura M. Marquand are the best known poets of the number; but an anonymous sonnet "For a Preface" is also of remarkable beauty. The editors of the Overland announce for a later number the second paper upon "The Iron Strike," which is a companion to the one published in June. Both papers were undertaken at the request of the magazine, in pursuit of its intention to become a medium for sound and impartial economic discussion and comparison of views from authoritative sources. The first paper has attracted great attention, and the second, whose appearance is deferred by delay in procuring certain complete statistics from the East, will attract no less.

Success in Breeding.

(National Stockman)

The man who establishes himself as a breeder of any class or kind of pure-bred stock, at once assumes more responsibilities than is generally found in a superficial examination of such a position. In him centers, not only the success of the individual enterprise, but also the reputation of the entire field in which he enters, and is affected to a greater or less extent by his integrity, honesty and general manner of doing business. Foggyism is always ready and anxious to rejoice over the failure of one who has broken from its ranks, and because such failures do sometimes occur, those who have taken the initial step in the right direction should with more care, guard against anything that has even the semblance of a failure. Untiring perseverance alone is no assurance of success when merits of the enterprise is measured by public opinion and is in a great measure dependent upon the general public for support. To produce stock for the market should not be the entire object of a breeder, when the value of his animals depend so much upon so many different things connected with their production. It is not difficult to see why the value of an animal is often changed by the transfer of ownership. It is well for beginners in such laudable work as the improvement of live stock, to study these points well, and to remember the character of the stock depends to no small degree upon the character of the breeder.
